Happy New Millennium! Below is our program of speakers for the spring. We look forward to seeing you at the lectures and invite you to join us at the receptions immediately following each talk. For additional information about our program or AIA membership, please contact Mary Voyatzis at the above phone number or via e-mail at MEV@u.arizona.edu. Our first lecture will be held in the Center for English as a Second Language (CESL), a different location from usual. It is located on North Campus drive, Northwest of Old Main. I would also like to remind you about the new Phoenix chapter of the AIA. For details about their program, contact Michael Pechacek (602-439-5948). All AIA lectures are free and open to the public.

We wish to alert you to the fact that there have been some problems at the national level of the AIA in terms of the registration of new or renewing members. The result has been that a number of people nationwide have not received confirmation of their memberships or their journals as requested, or they have received them late. The AIA headquarters in Boston is aware of these problems and is now working on correcting them. In the meantime, please contact Mary Voyatzis at the above number, if you have had any difficulties with your membership. We would like to inform the national AIA headquarters of such situations in our local society.

Finally, I would like to remind you about The University of Arizona Archaeology Club, a student run organization that sponsors talks on archaeological topics. For more information about membership or their program, please contact Mary Ownby, President of the Club, via e-mail at Mownby@u.arizona.edu.
